

BUSINESS BRIEFING

Michigan Auto Law

FARMINGTON HILLS

Michigan Auto Law moves

After 35 years in Southfield, Michigan Auto Law, the auto accident law firm, moved to a fully renovated office building in Farmington Hills. Michigan Auto Law, also known as Gursten, Koltonow, Gursten, Christensen & Raitt PC, has moved from Evergreen Road in Southfield to a 22,500-square-foot office building at 30101 Northwestern Hwy. in Farmington Hills.

"We are moving because after more than 50 years and three generations, we remain a growing and thriving law firm," said Steven M. Gursten, partner of Michigan Auto Law, a law firm specializing in automobile accident and No-Fault insurance litigation. "For example, during the past 15 years when Michigan has seen some of the harshest tort reform law in the nation, Michigan Auto Law has tripled in size, expanding from six to 19 lawyers."

The new office has been completely renovated. A specialist from the U.S. Green Building Council's LEED program helped redesign the building using "green-friendly" environmental principles.

Gursten says the firm's success has led to its astonishing growth. Michigan Auto Law has received the top-reported car accident or truck accident jury verdict or settlement in Michigan in seven of the last 10 years, according to published year-end verdicts and settlements reports. For more information, visit www.michiganautolaw.com or call 800-968-1001.